

Devoting Precious Time

The following happened when the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited the Breast Tumour Institute under construction at the Pyongyang Maternity Hospital.

Chairman Kim Jong Il had proposed its construction and paid special attention to it, personally examining its designs, he said, and devoted precious time to look it round.

He asked its officials if there were any other facilities needed for the institute.

They replied that the facilities had already been prepared in the main under the care of the Party.

Then, Kim Jong Un said nothing should be spared for the project which had been under special concern of the Chairman, and kindly asked them to report to him what they need, if necessary.