

I Feel as If I Plucked a Star from the Sky

One April day in 2015, the respected Comrade Kim Jong Un visited the Wonsan Baby Home and Orphanage nearing completion.

Feasting his eyes on the baby home and orphanage, he said: I feel very happy as the buildings are impeccable when viewed not only at the front but also from behind. It is really a wonderful palace for children to be proud of before the world. I am very pleased to picture in my mind the children playing to their heart's content without any worry.

He proposed building a new baby home and orphanage not only in the capital city of Pyongyang but in all provinces as required by the times and took all measures to this end. And two months ago, he, on his inspection trip to frontline units, visited the construction site of the Wonsan Baby Home and Orphanage and solved problems arising in the project.

And he visited them again and expressed great satisfaction, visualizing the children playing cheerfully. His was the image of a father who would find his pleasure in the work for his own children.

After a while, he said that he felt as if he had plucked a star from the sky.