

Personally Naming Padded Boots

One day in May 2010, the great leader Comrade Kim Jong Il visited a footwear factory.

After going round the shop floor, he saw the sample products of the factory. In front of various forms of padded boots, he picked one and looked at its name which read “padded boots for timbermen”.

Speaking highly of its employees for having done a great job, he repeated the name of the boots.

Then, he said: Not only timbermen but other people living in cold areas would like such padded boots. The workers of this factory produced wonderful things for the people, and their products should be named well. It would be better to call them Ryanggangdo padded boots as they are made in Ryanggang Province.

That day, he said he was most pleased to look round such a factory contributing to the wellbeing of the people and stressed that the factory should produce the padded boots in larger numbers for the people.
